

The average bank's lending portfolio is more concentrated in specific industries than the market's portfolio.